PROFICIENCIES AND CLASS FEATURES

What Dusty can do

Proficiencies

CATEGORY	DETAILS
Armor	Light armor, medium armor, shields (nonmetal only)
Weapons	Battleaxe, club, dagger, dart, handaxe, javelin, mace, quarterstaff, scimitar, sickle, sling, spear, throwing hammer, warhammer
Tools	Herbalism kit, mason's tools
Languages	Common, Druidic, Dwarvish, Goblin

Hill Dwarf Traits

Darkvision. See in dim light within 60 ft as bright light and darkness as dim light.

Dwarven Resilience. Advantage on saves against poison and resistance to poison damage.

Dwarven Combat Training. Additional dwarf weapon familiarity.

Dwarven Toughness. Extra hit points included in total.

Stonecunning. Dwarf stonework lore; add proficiency when appropriate. Speed is not reduced by heavy armor.

Druid Features

Ritual Casting. Can cast prepared druid ritual spells as rituals when time allows.

Wild Shape. Twice between short or long rests; max CR 1/2; no flying forms. Signature form is Giant Crab.

Natural Recovery. During a short rest, recover some expended spell slots as the Circle of the Coastal feature in this sheet indicates.

Spellcasting. Wisdom-based druid casting: spell attack +7, save DC 15.

Hermit Background

Feature: Discovery. Dusty returned from years of solitude with a personal revelation: truth lies in knowing and loving yourself.

Traits: Shares odd sayings constantly; joyous manner.

Ideal: Truth lies in knowing yourself.

Bond: Avoiding a forbidden love.

Flaw: Still seeks forbidden lore.

DM Ruling Note

The PDF says Circle of the Coastal and includes special spells such as Mirror Image, Misty Step, Water Breathing, and Water Walk. Keep those prepared as part of this character package unless the DM wants to swap subclass rules.

2nd-level slots: [] [] []

3rd-level slots: [] []

Concentration: Only one concentration spell can be active at a time. Call Lightning and Barkskin require concentration. If damaged, make a CON save: DC 10 or half damage, whichever is higher.

Cantrip: Guidance

CASTING TIME	RANGE	DURATION	COMPONENTS
1 action	Touch	Concentration, up to 1 min	V, S

Add 1d4 to one ability check before or after the roll, as allowed. Use constantly outside combat when the DM permits.

Cantrip: Poison Spray

1 action	10 ft	Instantaneous	V, S

Target must make DC 15 Constitution save or take 2d12 poison damage. It is short-range and all-or-nothing.

Cantrip: Shillelagh

Bonus action	Touch	1 minute	V, S, M

Imbues club/quarterstaff. Use Wisdom for attack/damage. Dusty's club becomes +7 to hit and 1d8+4 bludgeoning.

PREPARED SPELLS

Known spells and practical limits

LVL	SPELL	PRACTICAL USE
1	Detect Magic	Find magic; often useful as a ritual if the DM allows enough time.
1	Cure Wounds	Touch healing. Use on a downed or badly hurt ally.
1	Charm Person	Social control; risky if the target realizes afterward.
2	Mirror Image*	Defensive duplicates. No concentration. Strong if Dusty expects to be attacked.
2	Misty Step*	Bonus-action teleport. Escape, reposition, or reach an ally.
2	Barkskin	Concentration; defensive AC floor. Useful before Wild Shape depending on DM ruling.
2	Lesser Restoration	Ends one disease or condition: blinded, deafened, paralyzed, or poisoned.
3	Water Breathing*	Coastal party utility. Helps the whole group underwater.
3	Water Walk*	Coastal party utility. Cross water, mud, snow, quicksand, or similar surfaces.
3	Dispel Magic	End spells or magical effects. Use when magic is the problem.
3	Call Lightning	Concentration battlefield damage. Very Dusty: motivational speech, then lightning.
3	Daylight	Bright light and anti-darkness utility. Situational but useful.
3	Meld into Stone	Dwarf/druid defensive utility and hiding option in stone.

Rule-of-Cool Spell Prompts

Guidance: before a risky social, survival, medicine, or investigation check.

Misty Step: escape a grapple, reach a fallen ally, or make a dramatic entrance.

Call Lightning: begin with "THE TIDES DID NOT BRING US HERE TO BE MEDIOCRE!"

Water Breathing / Water Walk: make the coastal druid feel essential when the adventure touches water.

WILD SHAPE AND COASTAL COMBAT

Signature form and practical table reminders

Signature Form - Giant Crab

Not because it is the strongest, because it is the most Dusty. The crab is overlooked, armored, stubborn, and excellent at creating boundaries. Dusty uses it to protect friends, grab enemies, block spaces, and make the fight weird.

FORM / OPTION	WHY IT MATTERS	DUSTY LINE
Giant Crab	Coastal mascot form. Great for grappling and blocking enemies.	"Everyone wishes to be the eagle. Nobody wishes to be the crab. And yet here we are."
Bear	Bulkier threat and classic durability.	"Do not be alarmed. I remain emotionally available!"
Wolf	Mobility and pack energy.	"My spirit has become significantly furrrier!"
Any form	Use for scouting, theme, survival, or comedy with DM approval.	"This is still me! Please do not panic!"

Combat Use

Round 1: Cast a useful spell if needed: Call Lightning, Barkskin, Mirror Image, Cure Wounds, or utility.

Round 2: Wild Shape if the party needs protection or a body in the way.

Round 3+: Grab enemies, block movement, protect squishier allies, and create tactical chaos.

Grapple Reminder

A grappled creature has speed 0. Dusty can become a crab and say, "My friend, you need a moment to reflect," then clamp an enemy in place. Ask the DM for the exact monster-stat attack/save text at the table.

Feathered shawl from performer days, gull feathers, sea-glass jewelry, too many bracelets, driftwood staff/club, and a wooden shield painted with inspirational sayings. These are flavor unless the DM assigns mechanics.

BACKGROUND AND ROLEPLAYING

Hermit identity, appearance and personality

Hermit Background

Discovery. Dusty spent years trying to discover the secret of greatness and came back with: "Love yourself, my friends."

Preferred approach. She treats nearly every setback as a lesson. She gives motivational speeches to strangers, friends, and enemies alike.

Birth Name and Stage Name

Dusty was born Durna Fleetforge, a proud dwarven name fit for stonemasons and ledgers. She reinvented herself as Dusty Fleetwood, Mistress of the Sky, a stage name born from dock dust, driftwood, and a young performer's belief that destiny needed better branding.

Appearance and Manner

DETAIL	CURRENT ANSWER
Hair / braids	Braids decorated with gull feathers and sea glass
Face	Freckled hill dwarf with a warm face and bright eyes
Clothes	Layered blue-green skirts, flowing clothes, leather vest, feathered shawl
Accessories	Far too many bracelets; sea-glass jewelry; painted wooden shield
First impression	World's most emotionally supportive traveling performer
Actual manner	Dramatic, sincere, odd, flirty, wise, and occasionally ridiculous

Personality

Traits. Shares odd sayings nonstop. Joyous manner. Constantly assumes the universe is teaching lessons.

Ideal. Truth lies in knowing yourself.

Bond. Avoiding a forbidden love, while still being shaped by it.

Flaw. Still seeks forbidden lore and occasionally over-sermonizes instead of answering directly.

FULL BACKSTORY

Part I - The Fleetwood legacy and the sky

Dusty was born Durna Fleetforge into a respected family of dwarven stonemasons. The Fleetwoods built lighthouses, seawalls, docks, and temples. Their family believed greatness came from building something that would endure. Dusty disagreed, though she did not yet have the words for it.

While her siblings carved stone, Dusty sat on docks feeding gulls. Nobody understood her fascination, least of all Dusty. She was drawn to motion, noise, wind, hunger, freedom, and the shameless confidence of birds who never questioned whether they deserved someone else's lunch.

Dusty left home and reinvented herself as a traveling coastal performer: Dusty Fleetwood, Mistress of the Sky. Her act featured trained seagulls performing elaborate aerial routines. Her star attraction was a gifted gull named Chanco.

Dusty loved performing. She loved crowds, applause, admiration, and the feeling of being seen. Much later, she would understand that being admired and loving yourself are not the same thing.

She filled her life with movement and spectacle. The stage name felt adventurous, free, a little ridiculous, and a little beautiful - exactly like the woman she wanted to become. Durna Fleetforge disappeared, or so she thought.

Family Position

Original name: Durna Fleetforge.

Family craft: respected dwarven stonemasons and coastal builders.

Emotional truth: she did not hate her family; she hated feeling reduced to what they expected her to build.

FULL BACKSTORY

Part II - Betrayal, Chanco, and the Cliff Years

Dusty fell in love with a rival animal performer: beautiful, talented, magnetic. Dusty shared everything - routes, venues, contacts, and secrets of the trade. The woman used that knowledge to build a bigger and better show. Soon Dusty's crowds disappeared. Then Chanco left too. He was not stolen. He was not forced. He chose to go. Dusty lost her career, her first great love, and her closest companion all at once.

Dusty disappeared. For years she lived alone on sea cliffs. She followed storms, watched migrating birds, spoke to the ocean, meditated, listened, and searched. At first she believed she was searching for greatness. What she was actually searching for was herself.

Eventually nature showed her a lesson so simple it almost felt insulting: the eagle does not hate itself for not being a whale; the whale does not wish it were a gull; the gull does not apologize for being a gull. Nature does not spend its life wishing it were something else. Only people do.

Dusty realized she had spent years searching for a way to become worthy, when she had never learned how to love herself. That realization changed her. She stopped chasing greatness and approval. Peace became wisdom, and that wisdom made her a druid.

The Real Wound

Dusty is not naturally free of grudges. She is someone who spent fifteen years trying to let go of one. That is more interesting and more playable than instant forgiveness.

FULL BACKSTORY

Part III - Dusty today, Chancho legend, and forgiveness

Dusty no longer searches for greatness. She believes greatness already exists within every living thing, and that most people spend too much time fighting themselves to see it. She wanders the world helping others recognize their own worth, usually in extremely strange ways.

She gives motivational speeches to strangers. She offers unsolicited wisdom to friends and enemies alike. She treats every setback as a lesson. She believes nature has an answer for nearly everything, and quotes ancient truths that sometimes sound suspiciously like something she invented five minutes ago.

Dusty still hears rumors of Chancho: a wandering seagull seen before storms, on distant coastlines, and atop lighthouse roofs. She never knows whether to believe them, but she always smiles and says, "Good. Let him fly."

She occasionally hears stories of her former love, who became famous, celebrated, and remembered. Dusty no longer feels jealous exactly. Without the heartbreak, there would have been no Cliff Years. Without the Cliff Years, there would have been no Dusty.

Dusty has forgiven the large betrayals, or is at least practicing forgiveness. She absolutely has not forgiven petty things: the tavern owner who shorted her two silver, a seagull that stole a blueberry tart, a fisherman who said ravens were smarter than gulls, or Gerald, who knows what he said.

Most Dusty Line

"For a long time I thought Chancho left because I was not enough. Now I think Chancho left because he was Chancho. And I was Dusty. Still hurt though."

Dusty's philosophy is not that nothing hurts. It is that some things hurt forever. Love them anyway.

DM NOTES AND TABLE GUIDE

Hooks, tactics and roleplay reminders

Core Character Read

What Dusty Is

A hill dwarf coastal druid and former animal performer who became a self-love prophet after heartbreak and solitude.
 A battlefield support/control caster who can turn into a giant crab to protect friends.
 A dramatic, sincere, funny, flirty motivational aunt with real emotional scars under the optimism.
 A character who makes absurd sayings land because she actually means them.

Roleplaying Cues

DEFAULT TONE	Warm, confident, dramatic, encouraging, and strange.
WHEN COMFORTABLE	Sermons, gull stories, teasing wisdom, flirting, and theatrical entrances.
WHEN THREATENED	Still encouraging, but firmer. Uses boundaries language and protects friends.
WHEN FRIENDS FAIL	Never mocks. Reframes failure as learning.
AUTHORITY TRIGGER	People shaming others, demanding conformity, or defining worth by approval.
MORAL LINE	Every creature has value. Cruelty toward the vulnerable is not a lesson; it is a problem.

Combat and Action Economy

Preferred opening. Use Guidance before checks; in combat cast a strong control/support spell.

Crab mode. Wild Shape when allies need protection more than Dusty needs spellcasting.

Concentration. Track Call Lightning/Barkskin carefully. Damage may force CON saves.

Healing. Cure Wounds is for emergencies, especially fallen allies.

Support identity. Dusty is not built as a primary striker. She wins by keeping people alive and making enemies deal with her.

DM-Ready Story Hooks

A lighthouse built by the Fleetwoods needs help.

A sailor swears Chanco appeared before a terrible storm.

The rival performer is nearby, famous, and in trouble.

A petty grievance from Dusty's notebook becomes unexpectedly relevant.

Someone recognizes Durna Fleetforge, not Dusty Fleetwood.

Open Details

DETAIL	CURRENT ANSWER
Exact nature of forbidden love	Former rival animal performer; details can be adapted by DM
Chanco status	Legendary wandering gull; possibly alive, symbolic, or supernatural
Family relationship	Not hostile, but complicated; family may know her as Durna
Immediate one-shot motivation	Protect friends, follow a strange sign, investigate coast/nature trouble, or help someone learn their worth

DUSTY FLEETWOOD - love yourself, my friends, and such as.
